THE OLD GAOL

This old building stands in the grounds of the Bill Sewell Complex. It was built in 1858 by John Wilson and William Stokes at a cost of 620 pounds and was used as a prison until 1984.

The Gaol was left vacant until 1989 when a group of craftspeople banded together and took it upon themselves to clean up and restore this old building and make it into the tourist attraction it is today.

The empty cells are rented out to practising craftspeople and over 70,000 people have viewed the Old Gaol since it opened to the public in April 1989.

Members of The Old Gaol Craft Centre Inc with the help of local sponsors have just finished restoring the Historic Champion Bay Well. This well supplied a large part of Geraldton with water before the turn of the century. This well is in the front lawn of our old gaol.

The full history of the Old Gaol is framed and hangs on the passage walls. A visit into our past history and meeting our local craftspeople is a must on your visit to Geraldton.

Opportunity Rocks! Brings to the Bill Sewell Complex stage a collection of the region's best bands and solo artists and while they're entertaining you, Triple G's independent panel of judges will be deciding which act has got what it takes to win 20 hours of recording time in their state of art studios.

They'll walk away with a demo tape professionally mixed and mastered that they can use to get gigs or that elusive recording contract. Opportunity Rocks at the Bill Sewell Complex is on tonight starting at 8pm. Licensed bar and food available.
